A man in the East, where they do not require as much as clothing as in colder climates, gave up all worldly concerns and retire to a wood, where he built a hut and lived in it. His only clothing was a piece of cloth which he wore round his waist; but, as ill luck would have it, rats were plentiful in the wood; so he had to keep a cat. The cat required milk to feed it; so was brought in, and to look after the cow, a cow-boy was employed. The boy required a house to live in, so a house was built for him. To look after the house, a maid had to be engaged. To provide company for the maid a few more houses had to be built and people invited to live in them. In this manner a little township sprang up. The man said, "The further we seek to go from the world and its cares, the more they multiply."
